The Cincinnati Times-Star represents reneral newspaper sentiment in the folowing:

Here is a chunk of sense from the Toledo

Commercial Telegram: What reason is there for supposing that a Springfield candidate for Governor, it there were any such candidate, would find his chances improved by the convention being held there? Until quite lately the State Conventions were held in Columbus, almost as matter of course. How many Columbus men have been nominated for Governor, in the last twenty-five years, by either party? A circular sent out from the Hillsboro News office claims that the putting of a "local option" plank in the Republican plattorm, "will draw thousands of votes" to the Republicans "from the Prohibition party," but the Columbus Disputch says, with truth and force, that "the Prohibitionists want Prohibition-nothing more, nothing less." We hope the Republicans will put nothing, whatever, in the platform to "draw" certain classes, but simply put in the platform precisely what ought to be in it-and then stand up to it and fight it County tonical Committees be appointed at the and time that delegates are chosen, if this has not already been done.

Chronic Catarrh.

C. W. Mellier, of 406 South Fourth freet, St. Louis, is twenty years of age, nel has been a sufferer from chronic starch, which had become quite differ-tive. When he came to Dr. Hartman, two Danbury, Conn., is one place in which at a ago, he was told it would take six units to care him. But he has proseed beyon! all expectations, and the Doctors agree; that is to say, if we nearly all signs of the disease have disappeared. Be one being treated he could not breathe out of the nose, and now he has perfect control of the nasal organ. Percon a did the business.

James Dunn, of 1310 Gay street, St. Louis, has suffered from catarrh since 1870. The gentleman told the reporter the following straightforward story of his case. "I took the disease in Memphis. It commenced in my head and extended to my throat, and a bad cough followed. I went to a number of physicians, and they told me my trouble was liver disease, and one said it was palpitation of the heart that caused the cough. For the last year I have been practically worthless. I could not ascend a flight of stairs without suffering from shortness of breath and fast beating of the heart, and my appetite was very defective. After eating I often coughed so hard that I would throw up everything in my stomach. I could not walk any distance without panting. Five weeks ago I went under the care of Dr. Hartman, and now my cough has disappeared and I feel like James Dunn, of 1310 Gay street, St.

Next came George Sauerbaum, residing at 1929 Carr street, St. Louis, who is an old patient of Dr. Hartman. He stated that he had suffered most intensely from chronic catarrh of the head and lungs, but is now almost cured, his lungs being entirely well and his head greatly improved.
The gratitude of this gentleman was almost boundless, and he expressed it to the reporter in the strongest terms, saying "PERUNA will cure any disease."

I. P. Dukehart, of Cumberland, Md., superintendent B. & O. R. R. Co 's Hotels conductor on the Baltimore & Ohio Rail-road for twenty-eight years, and previous-ly a druggist), writes: "DR. S. B. Indeed! If the convention had been held n Columbus it wouldn't have been so convenient for delegates, who could not get satisfactory accommodations in Capital City hotels, to fall back on Dayton. We infer that Major Bickham now thinks that Springfield was really the right location for the State Convention.

PRETTY FEET.

Another woman who has struck a new idea is Miss Bessie Darling, says the New York World. At Nelse Waldron's benefit at the Grand Opera House she gave the sleep-walking scene of "Macbeth," appearing in her bare feet. Her feet were small and beautifully shaped, so that the effect was pleasing as well as realistic. As for the correctness of the idea, there can be no dispute about that, inasmuch as Lady Macbeth rises from her bed in a so nambulistic sleep, and in that condi-tion would hardly be likely to put on her shoes and stockings. Indeed, there were no manufactured stockings in those days. A strip of cloth or woolen stuff was wrapped around the feet and up to the knees, and held in place by strings or straps laced like our shoe strings. Actors of a generation ago always wore such leggings when per-sonating Macbeth. Aremnant of those sold improvised stockings may be observed upon the feet of newly-arrived Chinamen. The first manufactured stockings of the ancients were of coarse material and clumsy fabrication. The first silk stockings known in England were knitted by a lady of the court of Queen Elizabeth for her majesty, who was so delighted with their softness was so delighted with their softness and flexibility that she kept the donor knitting silk stockings as long as the august legs needed worldly covering. That even in these days of tight shoes and French heels there still remain feet free from excressences and deformities, Miss Darling is a living proof. Her feet are as pretty, as plump, and as pink as a baby's before it begins to walk.

Their pinkness reminds me of a curi-Their pinkness reminds me of a curious story Mme. (Patterson) Bonaparte once told me. She said: "While Napoleon L would never publicly acknowledge me as the wife of his brother Jerome he did so privately by allowing me to be on terms of intimacy with the members of his family, who, without an exception, received me as if I were one of themselves. One day I called on Caroline, Bonaparte's sister, and the greatest beauty of her day. and the greatest beauty of her day. She had just emerged from her bath, and was lying on a lounge in her bedroom. The scantiness of her clothing revealed to me one of the most perfect forms that heaven ever bestowed upon woman. In particular, her feet were of the most exquisite share and color. of the most exquisite shape and color, the soles and undersides of the toes being the tint of a tea-rose, the upper portions rivaling a lily in whiteness. Noticing my steadfast gaze, Carolino smiled and said:

A MATTER OF POLICY. A beautiful and bashful young woman of about nineteen summers called recently at the office of a life insurance agent, says the New York Telegram, and asked him timelly if he could tell her how long people of a certain age would live.

"Madam," replied the agent, coughing respectfully behind a prospectus, and drawing his chair near to her, there are our tables of expectation and average mortality, which contain all the information on the subject that you

ean desire."
"Well," said she, "how long will a man of 67, and that eats peas with his knife, live?"

"According to our table, madam," replied the agent, "he should, on the average, survive eleven years three nonths and sixteen days.

"That," said the visitor, "would be till the 21st of April, 1896." "Precisely, madam, on the average expectation of mortality, for we must all die, and it is therefore well to insure against loss to the loved ones in a comvhose character-'And how much could I insure his life for?" "Oh, for any amount-say for $10,-000," he answered, taking up a blank form of application. "Let me recom-mend the unexceptionable advantages offered by our non-forfeitable endow-ment policy."

"Well," said the young woman, "I think, then, I'll marry him." "Insure him, you mean?" corrected the agent. "No, marry him; you insure him. You see," she added, with a burst of confidence. "I love Herbert, and Mr. Dawkins is old enough to be my grandfather. But Herbert is poor, and I just father. But Herbert is poor, and I just worship the corner lots that Mr. Dawkins builds on. And Herbert is very patient, and says that if I will only fix a day, no matter how long he may have to wait, he will be happy. Now, you say Mr. Dawkins will die by the 21st of April, 1896; and as it wouldn't be decent to marry again till I've been a year in mourning, I'll arrange to marry Herbert on the 22d of April, 1897, and if Mr. Dawkins doesn't die by ther you'll give me $10,000. Oh, thank you!" and with a deep bow she swept

BURDENED BY WEALTH.

How difficult it is, writes a corres pondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer, for anyone who, like Mrs. Hettie Green, is burdened by wealth, to find a place of satisfactory deposit. She stored her bonds in Cisco's vaults, and also placed there several boxes of plate, but in the midst of fancied security she was astonished to hear of their failure. No time was lost in ascertaining the safety of her property, but she could only obtain it by paying nearly three quarters of a million, this being a debt incurred by her husband. It was a painful recess ty, but having been met she was allow-ed to remove her valuables, and the question then arose where they could be safely deposited. Her friends rec-ommended the Chemical bank, but as it was not judicious to place "too many eggs in one basket," she concluded to divide the amount between the abovementioned bank and the United States Trust company, which had also been highly recommended. In order to protect the treasure during this removal she obtained the services of a detective, and under their joint care the Londs were borne off in a cab to their new place of deposit. It was the richest load ever transported by a cab, the amount being estimated at more than a round $1,000,000. Many of those who have read of this female Crossus have wondered how a woman could acquire such vast wealth. It is sufficient, however, to mention that she is the daughter of Silvia How-land, of New Bedford, who inherited a half-dozen millions from her father, and was then the richest woman in Ameri-Silvia Howland became the bride ca. Silvia Howland became the bride of E. M. Robinson, who was a remarkeconomist, and who in this manner so increased their mutual wealth that on his death it was estimated at $30,000. 000. It is thus seen that Mrs. Green is the only child of an only child, each representing an immensity of wealth beyond the dreams of avarice. Her habits of economy are part of her inheritance, and will naturally prevent her from deriving much benefit from this vast accumulation of treasure.

THE PRINCESS OF WALES. The princess of Wales is adored by the English conservatives and radicals alike, writes a correspondent of the Boston Heraid, and it was a lucky day, indeed, for the heir apparent when he took the sweet and high-minded daughter of the king of Denmark to wife. Her popularity is rivaled only by that of Mr. Gladstone, and it is even greater than his, for Loudon is hers, heart and soul, as well as the provinces. To look at this pretty and girlish woman no one would imagine that she was forty years of age, and the mother of several children, including two great hovs, one of whom her just attained his boys, one of whom has just attained his majority. Although H. R. H. holds herself so well that, when seated in her carriage or in the box of a theater, she seems a tall woman, yet in reality she is petite. The princess dresses her hair rather high, and wears high heels. She is always attired to perfection, and usually in white or black in the evening, and in very quiet colors during the day; but her costume at night, however simple, is set off by the most magnifi-cent jewels, so that she literally "blazes like a jeweled sun." Her royal high-ness is somewhat deaf, but not serious ly so. The present writer has seen her many times in public, and has always many times in public, and has always been impressed with the grace and delicacy of her type of beauty, and the unaffected goodness that seems to surround her like an atmosphere. The princess is always cheered to the echo and fairly mobbed by the enthusiastic public. I have seen her scated in the royal coach, returning in state from Buckingham palace to Mariborough house, preceded by outriders, a diadem on her fair brow, and gorgeously attired; again, at a garden party, accompanied by her little daughter clinging to the skirts of her gown, as she walked along between the ranks of ladies curtseying, and men with their heads curtseying, and men with their heads uncovered; again, driving in Hyde park late in the afternoon with the little princesses, or sailing out to the roy-al yacht anchored off the Isle of Wight, the ribbons of her sun-hat fluttering in the fibbons of her sun-hat fluttering in the fresh breeze, her dress a simple blue serge, and, still again, se ling roses for charity at the fete held in the Hor-ticultural Society's grounds in South Kensington. The princess is a familiar, but always an isolated, figure in English daily life.

METAL POISON.

I am a coppersmith by trade, and during a series of years my arms (being bare when at wort) have absorbed a wonderful smount of metal polson. Having a scrotulous tendency from my youth, the smail particles of copper and brass would get into the sores, and by this process that poison was conveyed into my blood till my whole system became infected. I was treated with old remedles of mercury and iedide potassium. Sallvation followed, my teeh are all loose in my head, my digestive organe deranged, and I have been belpiess in bed for over a year with mercurial rheusatism. My joints were all awollen, and I lost the use of my arms and legs, and bocame helpless as an infant.

My sufferings became so intense that it was impossible for me to rest. The doctors advised me to go to the city hospital for treatment. This I could not bear. A friend, who has proved a friend indeed, urged me to try Swift's Specific, believing it would core me. Others discouraged me, but I secured a few bottles, and have now taken two dozen bottles. The first effect of the medicine was to bring the poison to the suiface, and I broke out all over in running sores. They soon disappeared and my asia cleared off. My knees, which had become twice their natural size, have resumed their usual size, and are supple as of yore. My srms and hands are all right again, and can use them without pain. The entire disease has left all parts of my body save two ulcers on my wrist, which are healing rapidly. I am weak from long confinement, but I have the use of all my limbo. This medicine is bringing me out of the greatest trial of my life, and I cannot find words sufficient to express my appreciation of its vitues, and the gratitude I feel that I ever heard of it.

I carried with me several bottles of swift's Specific, and as long as I took it, I had perfect health. As soon as I cessed taking it, I, like the rest, was sufficted with chills. When I resumed its us-, I was all right again. We have used it is our family as an antidote for malaria poison for two or three years, and have never known it to fall in a slugle instance.

GASOLENE

is the safest and purest Gasolene in the market. This brand burns longer than common Gasolene and does not emit an offensive odor. For Gasolene stoves and all purposes for which Gasolene is used, the White star Brand is the most reliable. If the White Star Gasolene is not sold in your vicinity, send your order direct to us for a barrel. BROOKS OIL CO.,
